WHAT IS CARI?

The Colorado Association of Robbery Investigators (CARI) is a non-profit 501(c)(3) organization (Tax ID # 841089440) that was originally formed in 1972 as the Metro Denver Robbery Intelligence Group to promote better communications among metro area robbery details and began meeting once a month to exchange offense, pattern and suspect information. In 1988 the organization's name was changed to its current name in an effort to spread membership statewide.

Investigators are considered members simply by attending monthly meetings and/or the annual training conference. CARI does not charge members annual dues to fund its operation. This is important in that CARI encourages as many investigators and private security representatives to be involved as possible. CARI's only sources of income are conference registration fees and donations from private sponsors.

WHAT DOES CARI DO?

- CARI organizes monthly meetings for robbery investigators and private security representatives from Front Range law enforcement agencies and businesses. These meetings provide a forum for exchange of information that otherwise might not be communicated to other investigators, i.e.: serial robber case information, arrested suspects and intelligence information.

The meetings also serve to foster working relationships between police investigators and private security representatives, increasing the reach and resources of each individual investigator as well as keeping the private sector informed. No information is held back.

Investigators from all Metro Denver law enforcement agencies, most Front Range agencies, the Colorado Bureau of Investigation, the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the State Division of Parole as well as security representatives from banks, jewelers, armored truck companies, grocery stores, fast food restaurants and convenience stores regularly attend the meetings.

- CARI organizes and hosts the annual National Robbery Conference (formerly the Western Robbery Conference). The National Robbery Conference is a training conference that is open to all law enforcement personnel as well as qualified private security representatives. The Conference consists of two and one half days of dynamic classroom instruction provided by experienced law enforcement personnel.

Social functions are included to encourage class member interaction and development of professional contacts. The conference is instrumental in building the necessary cross-jurisdictional camaraderie needed to investigate suspects that travel not only from city to city, but also from state to state.

- Recent conferences have included representatives from state, local and federal law enforcement agencies throughout the United States, Canada and Australia, as well as security managers from many retail businesses and banks.
- The Federal Bureau of Investigation has recognized the Western Robbery Conference as a training venue within its online Virtual Academy and has provided special funding to send Special Agents and Task Force Officers to the conference for training.
- CARI maintains a website, coloradorobbery.org, for the use of CARI members and the public.
